Orwell's writing is almost physical in the way he can depict life in a boarding school, or the poor alleys of Paris and on the road as a sort of tramp in England. (Down and Out in Paris and London.)

This book has more essays than memoirs, though my favorite is a description of his life as a student in an English Public School.

Cold Comfort Farm, by Stella Gibbons
Published in 1932 in satirical response to romantic rural literature popular at the time, Stella Gibbons' Cold Comfort Farm is a rollicking read about Flora Poste, a broke 19-year-old metropolitan orphan who decides to impose herself upon her remote farming relatives, the Starkadders. Full of aptly (and hilariously) named characters such as These seminal essays place ethnography at the intersection of interpretive anthropology, cultural studies, social history, travel writing, discourse theory, and textual criticism. They grapple with issues of power and poetics in contemporary situations of globalization, post-coloniality, and post-modernity. Since its publication in 1986, Writing Culture has been a source of generative ...

Pilgrim at Tinker Creek---nonfiction narrative. In 1971 I wanted to try my hand at prose. My journals were full of facts that I used to write Pilgrim at Tinker Creek (1974), a sustained nonfiction narrative about the fields, creeks, woods, and mountains near Roanoke, Virginia. Because I "named" its chapters, in the style of 19th-century narratives, many reviewers took it for a book of essays.
